Hos. Emera A. Spores, of Chicago, sailed for Europe last Saturday. The New York Graphic says it has information to the effect that Mr. Storrs ro, thus describes it: The court gues abroad as a representative of house is an adobe, built after the the American cattle shippers, and Mexican style. The court room was will endeavor to overthrow or miti filled by about as motly a crowd as gate the prejudice of European reg ulations against American beef and miners and a hundred other classes the cattle exporting indenests. He only to be found in such a country has strong letters from President as this. The sheriff is a Mexican, Arthur, Secretary Freylinghusen and the clerk an American. As the clerk General Grant.

A FRINCH photographer has night sweats and morning fevers that threaten to wind him up shortly. He has just got an order from the sul The sultan has 364 wives, and he wants them photographed for his inside vest pocket. It will not do to make one wife a thought less beau tiful than another, and it will also be necessary to have a score or two of them around when the proces of taking is going on. Of course there will be invidious remarks against the sitter, and no woman is endowed with sufficient patience to endure at one and the same time the jibes of rivals and the postures into which every well informed photographer tortures his subjects. The consequences of such a combination of adverse circumstances can well be imagined; and as the French photographer has a very vivid imagina tion, his sweats and fevers are easily accounted for. The position which Bismarck oc-that few can fulfill here, so new icupies in Europe is thus set forth in the London Spectator:

The extraordinary separateness of Prince Bismarck's position among European premiers comes out more strongly month by month. We can remember nothing in modern history the least like it. The man is the government of Germany, wields the Acres growing to flax...... whole force of the strongest of military empires, and is the one figure to be always reckoned with by the dip lomacy of Europe. If viewed from one side alone, no one can hold a prouder position; and it is, to use the terms of theology, almost self existent. The people could not remove him, even if they wished, for the Hohenzollerns would not give him up. The Hohenzollerus could not remove him, even if they wished.

DR. JELES ARNOULD estimates that in 1878 there were in the United States 30,523,000 beef cattle. 340,-740,000 sheep, and 32,262.000 hogs. Texas alone, with 820,000 inhabit. ants, had 4,500,000 of beef cattle 1,300,000 sheep, and over a million of hogs. In Canada, in 1871, there were 2,701,000 beef cattle, 3,331,000sheep, and 1,418,000 hogs. South America is still more rich in animal food. In the cities of the Argentine Republic, in 1877, there were 23,-337.000 beef cattle, 70,506,000 sheep, and about 355,000 hogs. So that in this latter region there are about 10 beef cattle and 31 sheep to each inhabitant, while in Europe there are only 331 beef cattle and 700 sheep to each 1,000 inhabitants. STINE'S $10 all wool Cassimere Suits.

The two Americans were sworn in English: the Mexicans were then sworn in English, which was interproted to them in Spanish. The witpages testified in English, which was interpreted to them in Spanish. When the evidence was heard the pudge instructed them in English and the lawvers argued the case in English and it was all rendered in Spanish to the jury. Neither lawcers, clerk nor judge could speak or understand the Spanish language. The trial was strange and appeared almost farcial. It was a trial, but a dull and tedious affair, far from be ing satisfactory to any one. The cause of this is a law which requires a residence of six months to qualify any one to be a juror, a requirement

Prices for Food to Come Down New York Sun.

The high prices for food can not last much longer, unless, perhaps, meats be excepted. The season throughout has been unusually propitious for vegetables and fruit. Already vegetables have appeared in Prospects of Adjournthe markets in such abundance that prices have become comparatively cheap, but not until two or three weeks bence will the great supply from our immediate neighborhood come in, to bring down their cost to the prevailing rates of the spring and early summer. The high prices obtained for potatoes last year led to the planting of covered with flounces of Venetian a largely increased acreage with this embroidery, imitating the designs of vegetable, which is one of the most profitable of crops, in ordinary seasons. So far, however, early potafor ladies and dark red for children toes have not been cheap, since they came from a distance; but the crop market, and it will be abundant. We are, therefore, nearly over the phenomenally high prices for potatoes. Enough must come in of the earlier sorts to put their cost down to about the average for the summer. When the fall crop is gathered there is every reason to expect a supply so great that potatoes can be bought

Fruits, too, promise to be abundant. The supply of strawberries is now so large that prices are likely to be down this week to from 10 to 15 cents a quart, wholesale. Contrary it, such as blue, red and bronze when to the early predictions, the crop of peaches will be enormous. The Maryland and Delaware orchards will send enough to insure cheapness, and the erop elsewhere promises to be

The grain crops are looking well, will be much ahead of last year. For wheat, rye, corn and oats, the season has been favorable, as it has been for the crops generally. The beautifulthere been reason yet to ery out for more rain. The grass is remarkably rich, the pasturage abundant and of the best quality, making butter exceptionally good, and its quantity arger than usual, while the hay crop s all we would hope for. Under such circumstances the day of a great decline in prices for food cannot be much longer delayed. Possibly butchers' meat may keep up to the supply sent to the markets, but the lower rates for other articles of food must tend to diminish the consumption of beef and mutton and to reduce their price.

CRIMINAL CULLINGS.

WASHINGTON, July 7.—The day of adjournment does not draw near very rapidly, so far as the senate is concerned, and in the course of a dozen or more interviews to-day it was learned that a large proportion of that body think that possibly they may be through by the 24th, while probably not till about August 1. This is based upon the appearance of things now, and opinions change from day to day with the prospect for dispatch of business. There are two or three things before the senate, or to come before that body, that may insure three weeks' debate Among these are the naval and sundry civil bills. Even after the river and harbor bill is disposed of, that must come up, besides one or two things that are likely to be discussed, although not necessary this session. No matter what resolutions may be

France and Russia, but I can assure you that the millions of bayonets of our neighbors point to the centre of Europe as to a magnet. Our geographical position will always make us the object of our enemies' attention. Formerly our own weakness was also in our way. Why may we not have coalition against us, as in the time of Frederick the Great? In my management of our foreign policy since 1871 I have always frustrated such mighty combinations; but my offices would have been of no avail without our military organization and without the respect entertained abroad for our good bayonets. In view of the slightly developed national feeling of our countrymen, our (Trans-Rhenish) neighbors do not abandon the hope of getting the Germans back to them, as centuries ago the Alsace-Lorrainers preferred the livery of France to the garb of the free German peasant. be re-organized as such. Opposing counsel defended the business of the association, and cited authorities in support of the arguments, which were exhaustive on both sides. The arguments having closed, Judge Smith verruled the demurrer and declared the ssociation simply an insurance company, differing from a life insurance company only in this: That it guarantees a live man a certain sum of money to be paid in the event of his marriage.

The defendants' counsel prayed for and was granted an appeal. The case will come up before the supreme court in Jannary. Meantime the Marriage Association will suspend business.

The business man who will ran down and bemean his own town is certainly standing in his own light, and isn't much of a business man after all. If a man is doing business in a town he does not like, let him pull out or else go to work and make business to build up his town. The National Indian Association's Journal contains a curious communication from the pen of Hamid Ali, entitled "A Plea for the Nose-Ring."
This ornament, called in India the "nuth," is commended by the learned writer as a most charming ornament. writer as a most charming ornament, adding much to the attractions of the adding much to the attractions of the ladies, who now wear it in a great many parts of India. The ring is described as being made of gold or silver, according to the means of the wearer, and measuring nearly four inches in circumference. It has one or two pearls strung upon it, and is fixed in this manner on the nose: One end of the metal is passed through a hole bored inside about the middle of the right nostril of the nose, and is then inserted into a small cavity in the other end of the metal destined to receive it. It is the exclusive privilege of macried women to wear this decoration, but single ladies console themselves by wearing an inferior sub-None of the public institutions of the capital has the fascination of the Bureau of Printing and Engraving. It is here where greenbacks—the prettiest and the finest money in the world—are made. When you enter the Bureau you are politely bowed to a sitting room, where you register your name and occupation, you have any. In a few minutes a guide comes and calls: "This way, please." Every morning a heavy box of a vehicle, looking like a huge iron safe on wheels, trundles from the Treasury over to the Bureau, bringing the paper destined to return as money. Every one of these myriad sheets is counted at the Treasury and charged to the Bureau. Every one must be returned in perfect money or even if spoiled by some unlucky accident. The careful account thus begun continues through the many handlings of that precious paper, guarding every arenue of fraud, making every of the nostril generally takes place when the girl is about five or six years old. A company assemble and sweet-meats are distributed, the patient receiving the lion's share, and being encouraged by well-meant comments on the part of spectators. The "nuth" was originally a purely Hindoo ornament, but is now worn by Mahometans also, especially in the Northwestern provinces. "It gives," as Hamid Ali contends, "such an elegance and charm to the face, as it hangs

In a room on the first floor are the engravers, about a score of them bending under mellow, milk-white shades, ing under memory patiently putting features, expression, grace and language into the resisting steel. On the walls hang some rare specimens of their cunning. A finished money plate is a work of art, and would cost about $1,500. The government pays skilled engravers so well that counterfeiting loses much of its charm. The great vaults in this room hold the plates, and there they rest every night. The locks are set so that they cannot be opened until seven o'clock every morning, and then only by the presence and aid of three officials, each with a different key. as Hamid Ali contends, "such an elegance and charm to the face, as it hangs from the nose and kisses the lips, as cannot be secured in any other way. And to do it full justice, it makes the face look much more beautiful and attractive than a pound of powder and a full hour's making up of the oyes and the hair toilet of some English ladies could possibly do, leaving the waste of time and money in the latter case out of the quesmoney in the latter case out of the question."

Sugar and Teeth, In a previous number it was stated that pure sugar and candies, having no residue, could not by lodgment about the teeth, injure them; and that if used in moderation, neither sugar nor candies were prejudicial to the teeth or health of young children or grown persons; that there was more or less sugar in all vege-table food, but as concentrations were liable to abuse, we advised that they should be taken at regular meals.

The Medical Journal, of Charleston, South Carolina, states the conclusions of

"1st. Refined sugar injures teeth, either by immediate contact, or by gas developed in the stomach.
"2d. That a tooth soaked in sugar water becomes jelly-like, from the sugar combining with the lime of the tooth," —Hall's Journal of Hralth.
